Arcadia Will Wait.

A charming romance was nipped in the bud today when Volney T. Gage, the son of former Governor Henry T. Gage of California, was induced to tear up the marriage license which he secured in order to make Miss Arcadia Viola Provencal his bride. The young woman is the daughter of Peter Provencal, a wealthy cattleman of San Diego and Riverside counties. She is 18 and the bridegroom-to-be is 21 years of age. After securing the license the couple went to the Gage residence at Downey. The ex-Governor immediately took counsel with them and showed them the error of marrying so young and asked them to postpone the important event. The man, whose eloquence has won many legal battles, did not fail in pleading this case. Volney and Arcadia finally decided to wait.

"We have no objection to the marriage of these two sweethearts," said Gage today, "save that we would see them older and wiser before taking the step. Why, they are mere infants. They will enjoy their engagement fully until the proper time comes for the solemn step."

The Gage and Provencal families have been close friends for thirty years. During the last year Miss Arcadia has been living at the Gage residence. —San Francisco Chronicle.

THE IDE-COCKERAN ENGAGEMENT.

It Is Another of the Result of That Taft Matrimonial Cruise.

Santa Barbara, Cal., July 16.—The formal announcement Friday of the engagement of Miss Anne Ide, eldest daughter of Gov. Gen. Henry T. Ide of the Philippines, to Congressman W. Bourke Cockran of New York, does not come as a surprise to Miss Ide's intimate friends here, though it will be news to society in many cities of this and other countries where Miss Ide and Mr. Cockran are well known. Although the engagement has been more or less an open secret among Miss Ide's friends for sometime past, she preferred to have the official announcement come from the executive mansion in Manila, and would neither confirm nor deny the rumor. Mr. Cockran first met Miss Ide during the trip of the Taft party to the Orient. Miss Ide and her sister joining the party at Manila and making the trip with it to Japan and China. No date has been fixed for the wedding as yet, but it is certain it will not be taken place until the return of Gov. Gen. Ide in October.

BRITISH SUBJECT KILLED.

Chinese Pirates Fire on Ship Near Wuchow, China, and Escape.

Hong Kong, July 16.—The British steamer Saiman was attacked by Chinese pirates Friday evening at a point 50 miles from Wuchow, China. Rev. Dr. MacDonald was shot and killed. The captain of the steamer was badly wounded, and the engineer saved himself by hiding behind the boilers. He was, however, badly burned. A Chinese passenger also was killed. The pirates escaped in junks. The British cruiser Moorhen has left for the scene. Dr. R. J. J. MacDonald and his wife were stationed at Wuchow in the interests of the Wesleyan missionary society.

Capt. Dreyfus.

Alfred Dreyfus, captain in the French army, who was convicted by secret court-martial of treasonable dealings with Germany and sentenced to public disgrace and solitary confinement on a desert island, has been declared innocent of the charge and restored to full rank after twelve years' effort to clear his name and win back his position. The whole world was made familiar with the details of his persecution and deplored it. Equally widespread will be the joy not only the vindication of Dreyfus, but also because of that vindication the French nation has vindicated itself. Thinking only of the suffering of the individual and remembering the incredible trials by which he was convicted in the first instance and afterwards, even at Rennes, kept in the official communication, it was easy rather to blame France for a grudging act of justice. But the very fact that a proud and highly sensitive nation has yielded, after long delay, under pressure of a peculiarly trying character, should remove any bitterness from the act of justice.

Is Emilie Zola belongs the credit of giving voice to the universal demand for justice in his ringing cry "J'accuse," when he charged the French generals with forging the infamous dossier upon the awakened conscience of the French nation, following the disclosures made by the unfortunate Col. Henry, that brought about the happy result announced today, and the news will be welcomed none the less that it has come tardily and after a struggle that at one time menaced the integrity of the nation. Not only Zola, but time was needed that justice might be done without bringing down the pillars of state. Whatever race hatred had to do with Capt. Dreyfus' cruel treatment it is safe to say that in France at least the anti-Semitic fanatics will read in today's decision a condemnation of their spirit and methods from which they will not speedily recover. —New York Globe.

An Incident in Bethel.

A farce in real life was enacted at the passenger depot Saturday on the arrival of the 3:44 mail from the south. A woman, carrying a baby, alighted from the train, bound for Pittsfield. As she had some baggage to attend to at the upper end of the yard, she cast around to see what disposition to make of her baby. She saw a man, and, saying "Charles Burgess is waiting for the depot," she handed the baby in his arms without the request to hold him till she could return in a few minutes.

Mr. Burgess is not in first-class training in baby-holding just now and somehow lost control of the little squirming who rolled to the foot of the steps. Mr. Burgess, mindful of the sacredness of his trust, did the best thing he could think of, he rolled after the baby, and just then the mother came up to find her little one lustily crying, but unhurt, with his curly guardian lying astraddle on top.

The mother gathered up her darling and then turned to the somewhat abashed Burgess with, "I told you to hold that baby!" The situation by this time was exciting the risibilities of the bystanders and this excited the mother's anger all the more, and she turned to John H. Tupper, who was sneezing a little louder than the rest, and said, "Shut up, you old snorter!" and then left for the Rochester train. —Bethel Correspondent of Randolph Herald.

A CHINESE CRITIC.

His Comments on Our People and Our Modern Inventions.

You have in America a population of 81,000,000, more or less. According to your claims, nine-tenths of these would be above the average. What are the facts?

Out of this enormous body you have but 12,000 or 14,000 men and women who have achieved enough intellectual prominence to lift them above the average of all these, but a twelfth or fourteenth are women, so out of 81,000,000 of souls you have but 1,400 women who have shown brains sufficient to place them on a plane above the common herd who live or die without being heard of. Of this small group of pseudo intelligent people about a fourth live in New York, and New England produces the most.

In China we have 600,000,000 souls according to some estimates, and 400,000,000 according to others, and the percentage of ultra intelligent men is fifty times as large as in America. Our principle is education. True, it is not like your own, and some of your illiterate politicians appear very strangely educated to me, as in our country we have had what is virtually civil service for ages and every officeholder keeps his position by virtue of his having passed a very severe classical examination.

My ancestor of particular note in what would be 1,500 years ago was an astronomer of distinguished parts, and we have had many of your arts and sciences for ages.

Chinese men visited America 1,000 years before Columbus was heard of. Your native American Indians could trace their ancestry back to far Cathay thousands of years ago and they preserved their annals, and so I might go on and speak all night, telling you of the inventions which fill your patent office which were stolen from China.

The Yankee is famous for his cunning, but it does not stand investigation. When the first Yankee sea captain entered China he made a list of all our inventions and appliances, and when he returned to America he began to invent things and get them patented. I have seen scores of patented articles that have been known in China for 2,000 years.—Metropolitan Magazine.

Thrift That Makes Wealth.

The public debt of France is $1,000,000,000, all held at home. In addition the French people own foreign securities to the stupendous aggregate of $15,000,000,000, and it is further estimated that an equal amount is placed in home securities. These figures may be exaggerated—all but those representing the public debt—but they illustrate the virtue there is in thrift, which is also a German usage. There is no Rockefeller, no Carnegie, in France, though there may be a lesser Russell Sage. The French people do not speculate; they save. They do not get rich at a hop, skip and jump; they accumulate by slow degrees—they economize. The crime of crimes in rural France is waste, and France would subsist on what America throws away. Within the past year there have rotted on American farms enough machinery and utensils to supply agricultural France the next quarter of a century.—Washington Post.

An Unexpected Request.

The German empress recently had a somewhat disconcerting experience. While staying at one of the imperial hunting castles in Alsace she paid a visit to a village school a few miles from Strassburg. Before leaving she gave the pupils the customary permission to ask any request they pleased, with the promise that she would grant it if in her power to do so. Fully expecting the favor would take the form of a whole holiday or a supply of cakes, she was not a little embarrassed when one of the elder girls stood up and in a somewhat trembling voice asked that the French language might be taught in that school. Her majesty looked thoughtful, but realizing the necessity of keeping her word, she gave the required permission, to the great delight of the pupils.

The Trials of an Editor.

Sergei Nicolavitch Mendelson, a Russian journalist and political prisoner, lost both his arms and legs in an accident at Odessa. With rare determination he learned to write by holding the penholder between his teeth. Removing to St. Petersburg he started an advanced radical newspaper. A few months ago the paper was suppressed and the armless and legless editor imprisoned. His utterly helpless condition left him absolutely at the mercy of the brutal prison wardens. His punishment has now been commuted to close arrest in his own house.

Matrimonial Lull in Korea.

Thousands of the most beautiful maidens of Korea are languishing in splendor owing to an edict of the government. A year ago the crown prince became a widower, and he has now decided to remarry. Government officials throughout the country have been instructed to forward to Seoul the names and full descriptions of the most eligible maidens. Meanwhile instructions have been issued that no young woman of the better class shall be married until the crown prince has announced his choice.

Snuff For the Commons.

It is not generally known, says the London Express, that a generous country supplies members of the house of commons with gratuitous snuff. "Formerly," the Express says, "snuff was described in the estimates as such, but to ward off the objection aroused by improving habits the charge of £200 a year was mixed up or covered in the estimates as 'lamp oil.'"
